PATENT CANNABIC ORNAMENTS, for ARCHITECTURAL and ORNAMENTAL DECORATION.—Warehouse, 29, Margaret-street, Regent-street, London.—These admirable ornaments, of which there are already 1,000 patterns and a large stock ready, may vie in their finish and delicacy with metal, stone, or wood. They have been extensively used in Paris, and at the new gallery of the Louvre. In England they have been used to decorate Sudbury Hall, and the saloon of the Royal Italian Opera House, and many noblemen's and gentlemen's houses, and have obtained the Gold Medal of the Society of Arts for their peculiar fitness for internal and external architectural, decorative, and cabinet work. The material is strong, light, and perfectly impervious; it neither shrinks nor cracks, and produces the finest or boldest outlines, and grips and burnishes up to the roughness of solid metal. For small ornaments the price will be found to be 25 per cent cheaper than papier maché, but for those of a larger size the deduction of price is considerably greater.
